

Thumbs up for water survey

Written by Elizabeth Barrett

Friday, 02 November 2012 14:52 -

Groundwater education: Gothenburg High School junior Tyson Miller advertises a survey he and the rest of his environmental class gave classmates Friday. The class is working in partnership with The Groundwater Foundation to educate students about the importance of clean drinking water and responsible usage, according to class teacher Maggie Tiller. Students who completed the survey received pencils and bookmarks.