

Creativity at work

Written by Elizabeth Barrett

Thursday, 13 May 2010 21:11 - Last Updated Thursday, 13 May 2010 21:14

SHAPING A POT: Mathiel Martinez, a Dudley Elementary sixth grader, uses a graceful touch to shape a pinch pot during an Outdoor Education class that was inside the school Friday morning because of cold, blustery weather. When temperatures warmed up in the afternoon, students traveled to an interstate lake south of Willow Island for more classes. Students from the high school art club led the session on pottery making.

