

Pro tour stops at Wild Horse

Written by gothenburgtimes

Thursday, 17 May 2012 14:47 -

PRO TOUR HOPES: Wild Horse Golf Club this week is hosting the Midwest Open for the Golfweek National Pro Tour. Approximately 145 golfers are competing for the $150,000 in prize money. The Gothenburg tournament is one of 19 stops on the tour this year. The tour is not a “mini tour,” but a complete developmental system specifically designed to prepare players from the entry level to the PGA Tour. Competition started Tuesday and continues through Friday. There will be a cut after two days of play. Current scoring can be followed online at nationalprotour.com.