

Heave ho

Written by Elizabeth Barrett
Thursday, 12 July 2012 13:40 -

Repairing heat damage: On Monday, city crews were repairing pavement, at the intersection of Avenue J and 20th Street, that heaved from expansion during excessively high temperatures last week. City services director Shane Gruber said about three panels will be replaced. Although heat has caused potholes in streets in other areas of town, Gruber noted that this one was severe and pushed up pavement so the intersection was not driveable. He predicted that the fix would take at least a week.