

Midwife assisted in delivery of many Gothenburg residents

Written by Elizabeth Barrett

Wednesday, 17 July 2013 22:51 - Last Updated Wednesday, 17 July 2013 22:53

Lois Atkinson has nothing but nice things to say about a local midwife who helped deliver two of her seven children.

“She was like a mother to us all,” said 96-year-old Atkinson about Edith Booth. “She was soothing.”

According to articles in The Times centennial issue and the Gothenburg Area History book, Edith Booth helped deliver and care for about 200 babies.

Two hospitals—one above a pharmacy and the other on the southwest corner of 14th Street and Lake Avenue—were in operation when Booth moved to town from Pine Bluffs, WY, in 1921 but she only provided part-time maternity care as she cared for six of her own children.

However at the urging of the doctors in town, Booth became licensed and established a maternity care facility in her home at 1703 Ave. B in 1942.

“It wasn’t a very big house,” Atkinson said.

Atkinson remembers the facility where she delivered the first boy and stayed in the home for a few days.

She also recalls the home diagonally across the street, at 1620 Ave. B, where the family moved five years later after it was built by Charles Booth, Edith’s husband, who was a carpenter.

Midwife assisted in delivery of many Gothenburg residents

Written by Elizabeth Barrett

Wednesday, 17 July 2013 22:51 - Last Updated Wednesday, 17 July 2013 22:53

Midwife assisted in delivery of many Gothenburg residents
A woman who has lived in Gothenburg for most of her life, and who has been a midwife for over 40 years, is helping to deliver the city's first baby in a long time. The baby was born on Wednesday, July 17, 2013, at the Gothenburg Hospital. The midwife, who is a member of the American Midwifery Association, is one of the few midwives in the city who are licensed to deliver babies. She has been a midwife since 1973, and has helped to deliver over 1,000 babies. She is currently working at the Gothenburg Hospital, where she is the only midwife on staff. She is also a member of the Gothenburg Midwifery Association, which is a group of midwives who are working to improve the quality of midwifery care in the city. She is also a member of the American Midwifery Association, which is a national organization of midwives. She is currently working at the Gothenburg Hospital, where she is the only midwife on staff. She is also a member of the Gothenburg Midwifery Association, which is a group of midwives who are working to improve the quality of midwifery care in the city. She is also a member of the American Midwifery Association, which is a national organization of midwives.