Filling weights makes difference.

COLUMBUS—In a dual wrestling meet, team points are won and lost at every weight.

Filling all 14 slots can make a huge difference as the Swede team learned during the two-day Nebraska Duals at Columbus over the weekend.

If a team leaves a weight open, the opponent automatically receives winning points.

“We took some lumps in a few spots,” said Gothenburg wrestling coach Eric Manstedt, “but we filled a full team. I can’t really believe we finished second.”

The Swedes won eight of 10 duals at the meet to place second in the team standings behind Millard South, a Class A school with champion or runner-up state trophies the past six years.

“We had a lot of kids come on strong,” Manstedt said. “I threw some younger guys to the wolves and they did real well.”

Junior Tanner Schwanz finished 9-1 in the 119-pound class losing only to Jake Miller of Millard South, a state runner-up last season.

Mitch Spiegel ended up 8-2 with losses to what Manstedt called tough opponents from Blue Valley, MO, and O’Neill.

Other Swedes didn’t win as many matches but showed improvement through the event.

“It’s such a grind,” Manstedt said. “Five matches in one day is a lot of wrestling. By the end of it, we were beat to death.”

But it’s the time on the mat and those sturdy opponents that provide necessary lessons for improvement.

“Sometimes you learn more from the matches you lose,” the coach said.

Now that the Swedes have second-place bragging rights from the Nebraska Duals, it’s back to work in the wrestling room before Gothenburg travels to Grand Island this weekend for the Flatwater Fracas, another two-day meet.

Manstedt said 20 teams are split into four pools of five each for the first day of wrestling.

Gothenburg will face Grand Island Northwest, Norfolk, Mitchell and Hastings on Friday in dual format.

Based on results of the dual action, schools are then divided into eight-team brackets for Saturday’s action.

This is the first year the Swedes have participated in this meet.

Manstedt said the two-day format with a high number of matches forces the wrestlers to keep their mental focus for long periods.

“It’s all about keeping your mind on your goals and continuing to push to where you want to go,”
