Brady students present 'The Pirates of Penzance.'

A young pirate apprentice, Frederic, is about to be freed from his indentured period and has decided to leave the pirate life.

Once on shore, he falls in love with Mabel, one of the daughters of Major General Stanley.

The pirates soon arrive and want to marry the rest of Stanley's daughters but the major general enlists the police to stop them.

Frederic wants to help protect the ladies but discovers that due to a technicality, he is still bound by duty to remain with the pirates.

"It's funny all the time," said music director Valerie Pohlman. "These kids are so fun and they have great attitudes. That's what will make this play work."

Pohlman has experience with "The Pirates of Penzance," a musical originally done as an opera, written by Gilbert & Sullivan.
