Five Brady volleyball players have earned post-season honors following voting by coaches of the seven Sandhills Conference schools.

Brady junior Carissa Rayburn received top recognition as the all-conference libero, an honor she also received as a sophomore.

Junior Valerie Most and senior Dakota Terry were also named to the all-conference team.

Thirteen girls received the all-conference team recognition with 10 named honorable mention.

Brady had the most girls on the all-conference list with five total, followed by Sandhills/Theford and Mullen with four each.

Eagle junior Madison Elliot and senior Molly Hannon were among those getting honorable mention.

The Eagles finished the season with a 23-8 record after losing to Mead in the first round of the Class D-2 state tournament.

Mullen also lost in the first round at state finishing with a 22-10 record.
