A team of four students in David Jacobs' building construction classes at Brady High School finished first in a construction competition during Inter-High Day at North Platte Community College on March 20.

Jacob Brown, Levi DeStefano, Micheal Neiman and Jacob Walter had to construct a saw horse using specific measurements and following detailed instructions, Jacobs said.

For their efforts, the students earned a certificate that will cover three credit hours of tuition for a summer class.

They also earned a $500 scholarship to NPCC that will be awarded by the school.

Inter-High Day included hundreds of students from 29 area schools.
